

Religious Affiliation and Charity Trust

Religious affiliation is associated with higher trust in charities. Atheists, Agnostics, and Unaffiliated participants are:

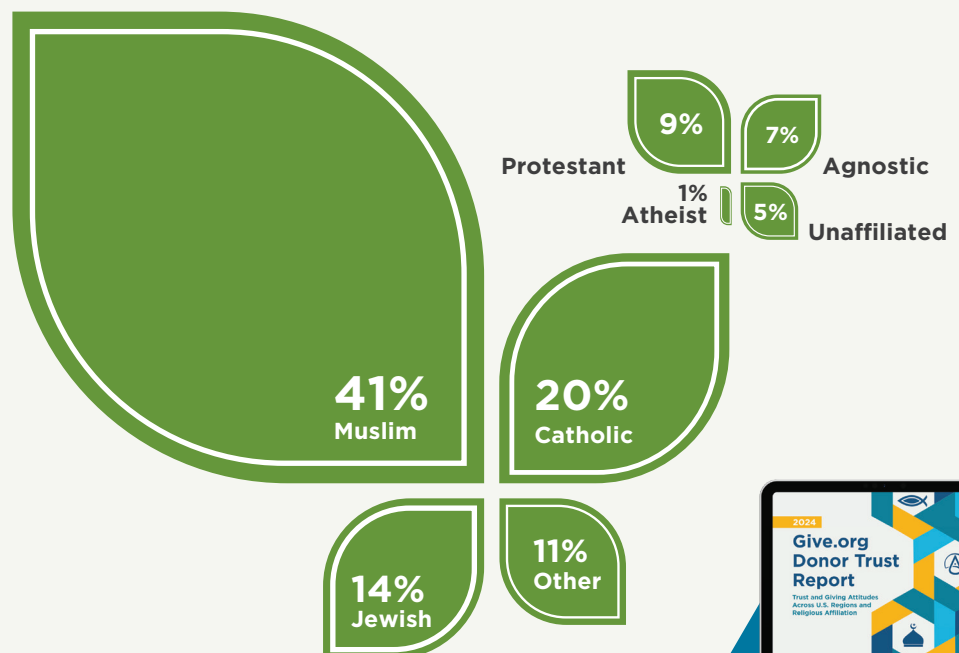

1 Less likely to report high trust in charities than participants with other religious affiliations.

2 Most likely to report no contributions over the past 3 years.

3 Least likely to say they would like charities to approach them more.

Download your copy of the 2024 Give.org Donor Trust Report at Give.org/DonorTrust

